

edcamp Arkansas 2013

October 5, 2013

University of Central Arkansas

open to all in-service and pre-service educators

What is an Edcamp? Quite simply, EdCamp is an "unconference," which means professional development that has no vendors, no keynotes, and no pre-set sessions. The entire day is structured around the needs of the attendees on the day of the conference.

We'll be discussing everything from educational technology to TESS to parental involvement, and anything else participants want to collaborate on.

In addition to official ADE professional development credit, we will have food, door prizes, and ample opportunities to connect with other passionate educators.

For more information, email us at edcamparkansas@gmail.com or visit our website, edcampArkansas.org