Introduction

Granting tenure involves not only an evaluation of past performance but also an evaluation of potential for continued growth. Moreover, the granting of tenure means the acceptance of a new member into the university’s permanent scholarly community. The tenure decision, therefore, must involve consideration of a faculty member’s ability to work effectively in, and contribute significantly to, the department and university community. It must be recognized by the faculty member and all evaluators that various factors, including staffing plans, the department’s enrollment trends, and budgetary requirements may influence tenure recommendations.

During the third year of probationary status the performance of a tenure-track faculty member is reviewed and evaluated by the departmental tenure committee, the department chair, and the college dean in light of the standards enunciated in the UCA Faculty Handbook. In cases where credit toward tenure has been granted with the initial contract, the review and evaluation will be conducted two years prior to the year the tenure decision will be made. The purpose of the mid-probationary evaluation is to provide the faculty member with an index of how he or she is progressing toward achieving tenure. A favorable mid-probationary review implies no promise that the faculty member will ultimately be recommended for tenure; such a recommendation will be additionally dependent upon subsequent performance as well as programmatic needs. Similarly, a faculty member who receives unfavorable evaluations at the time of mid-probationary review will not be penalized if his or her subsequent performance and programmatic needs ultimately justify a positive recommendation. The faculty member may choose to include or not to include this mid-probationary evaluation with his/her final tenure application.

[NOTE: the departmental tenure committee, the department chair, and the college dean each complete the following evaluations. The appropriate signature section (see below) will be completed as the last part of the evaluation document.]
