Fall Semester, 2011

Syllabus

Irby 313

Introduction:

English Literature III is the last part of the English Literature survey classes. It begins with the Victorian Era and goes up to the present. This particular combination of periods is especially good because, in many respects, what we regard as the modern world was created by the cultural, social, political, and economic developments of the Victorian Era together with their subsequent failures and retreats. We will be reading a sampling of some of the more influential writers of these periods and will try, in a general way, to look at the historical and cultural contexts of their works. Though most of our reading will be poetry, there will also be some nonfiction prose, fiction, and a play. There will be four exams, including the final, and all four will be essay.

Final

I may make some changes in the reading as the semester wears on, but I will notify you of any such changes well in advance.

The essay exams will be in class and will test your ability to analyze and interpret the works we are reading. Your grade will be based on the clarity and substance of your essays. Your final grade will be based primarily on these exams, but class attendance and participation in class discussion can help your grade if it is borderline. (You are allowed three unexcused absences. After that, you need to talk to me.)

The University of Central Arkansas affirms its commitment to academic integrity and expects all members of the university community to accept shared responsibility for maintaining academic integrity. Students in this course are subject to the provisions of the university's Academic Integrity Policy, as approved by the Board of Trustees as Board Policy No. 709 on February 10, 2010, and published in the Student Handbook. Penalties for academic misconduct in this course may include a failing grade on an assignment, a failing grade in the course, or any other course-related sanction the instructor determines to be appropriate. Continued enrollment in this course affirms a student's acceptance of the university policy.

I don't tolerate plagiarism or cheating of any kind. If you cheat and I find out about it, I will fail you for the course. In case you haven't noticed, cheating undercuts your own education, not to mention your character.

You should familiarize yourselves with all the policies listed in the Student Handbook, in particular those relating to academics (beginning on page 25) and sexual harassment (on page 93).

The University of Central Arkansas adheres to the requirements of the Americans With Disabilities Act. If you need accommodations under this act due to a disability, contact the Office of Disability Support Services at 450-3416.

Since I invariably treat my students with consideration and respect, I expect courtesy and respect from my students. I will not tolerate any kind of behavior directed towards me or any students that interferes with the class. You will receive one and only one warning. After that I will drop you from the class.
