Reports to the chair of the philosophy and religion department and is responsible for curriculum development of the program, insuring regular course offerings, advocating for the program's interests and overall assessment of the program.

SELECTED ADMINISTRATIVE ACCOMPLISHMENTS

(Chronologically from most recent)

- Collaborating with other deans and chairs across campus, initiated a Bachelor of General Studies degree. As a program with online learning options, it will provide an opportunity for more non-traditional students to complete a university degree. (2017)
- In cooperation with colleagues, initiated and organized a Campus Election Engagement Project committee that helped students to hold voter registration drives, soapbox and debate watch events and disseminate information about the candidates. (2016)

- In cooperation with colleagues, initiated and organized a university-wide Academic Service-Learning program; served as inaugural Faculty Liaison for Service-Learning and in this capacity facilitated an annual faculty development seminar on service-learning pedagogy. (2012)
- Initiated and organized a faculty development workshop on Undergraduate Research. Dr. Jenny Shanahan, Director of Undergraduate Research at Bridgewater State University, led the workshop for college faculty. (May 2012)
- Initiated, and in cooperation with the Director of Learning Communities, began a new Residential College organized around the College's EDGE plan: EDGE Residential College emphasizes global learning, civic engagement and study abroad, and I served as Rector for seven years. (2010)
- Initiated and co-wrote a successful UCA Foundation grant, "Service-Learning Workshop: Building Capacity for Student Success," to sponsor two service-learning faculty development activities, an online audio seminar and a hands-on workshop with Dr. Patty Clayton, Senior Scholar at IUPUI. (May 2010)
- Initiated and organized a distinctive strategic identity for the College of Liberal Arts: "Educating for Diversity and Global Engagement." The EDGE program emphasizes the college's expanding diverse/global curriculum and increases opportunities for students to participate in experiential learning activities such as study abroad/domestic study away, internships, service-learning/civic engagement courses and undergraduate research partnerships. (2009)
- Initiated, organized and directed a degree program in Interdisciplinary Liberal Studies which provides an opportunity for students to design a course of study with a faculty mentor. (2008)
- As the first Director of General Education, I initiated and organized a full review of the General Education Program with particular attention to rethinking the core competencies of writing, speaking, critical thinking and information literacy. (1999-2003)
- Initiated and organized a state-funded faculty development workshop on "Critical Thinking and Writing in the College Classroom," that allowed faculty across campus to participate in an intensive two-day workshop for critical thinking and writing pedagogy development. Dr. Gerald Nosich, from the Center for Critical Thinking at Sonoma State University, led the workshop.
- Initiated and organized two state-funded faculty development projects on Teaching with Technology in the Residential Colleges. Also secured a State grant for UCA's first Smart (technology enhanced) classroom
- Helped to organize an Asian Studies Development Project to develop an Asian Studies minor and infuse Asian studies into the general education curriculum.

This project began with three faculty (myself included) attending the Asian Studies Development Program at the East West Center in Hawaii, and has continued with additional faculty attending ASDP, a number of on-campus workshops and presentations, and culminated with the college being named a regional center of the ASDP.

- Helped to plan and develop two new Residential Colleges, the second of which included an enriched general education curriculum. Over the years Residential Colleges have expanded at UCA with successful retention effects.
- Initiated and developed First-Year Seminars in General Education in the Humanities and in the World Cultural Traditions areas of the general education program.
- Initiated, developed and formerly directed an Interdisciplinary Religious Studies Program. Implemented an assessment plan and process for all students in the program.
