

Reynolds Performance Hall

Presents a Social Narrative for Main Stage Performances

the MAIN STAGE education Series

This project is generously funded by Mid-America Arts Alliance, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the state arts agencies of Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and Texas.

I will go to Reynolds Performance Hall to see a play.

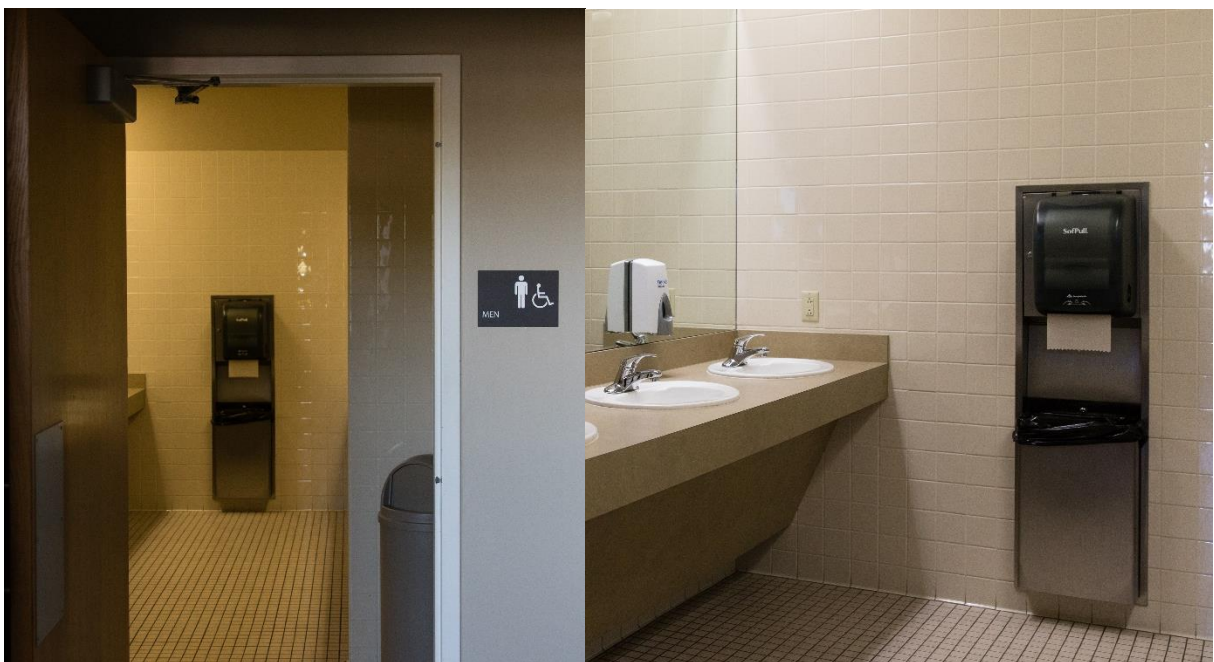

The performance hall is located on the campus of University of Central Arkansas in the city of Conway.

My bus will stop next to the building. Before I go inside, a volunteer will talk to my teacher and bus driver about where to park the bus.

I can use the bathroom when I go inside. There are no hand dryers, only paper towels.

I can also have a drink of water from the water fountain.

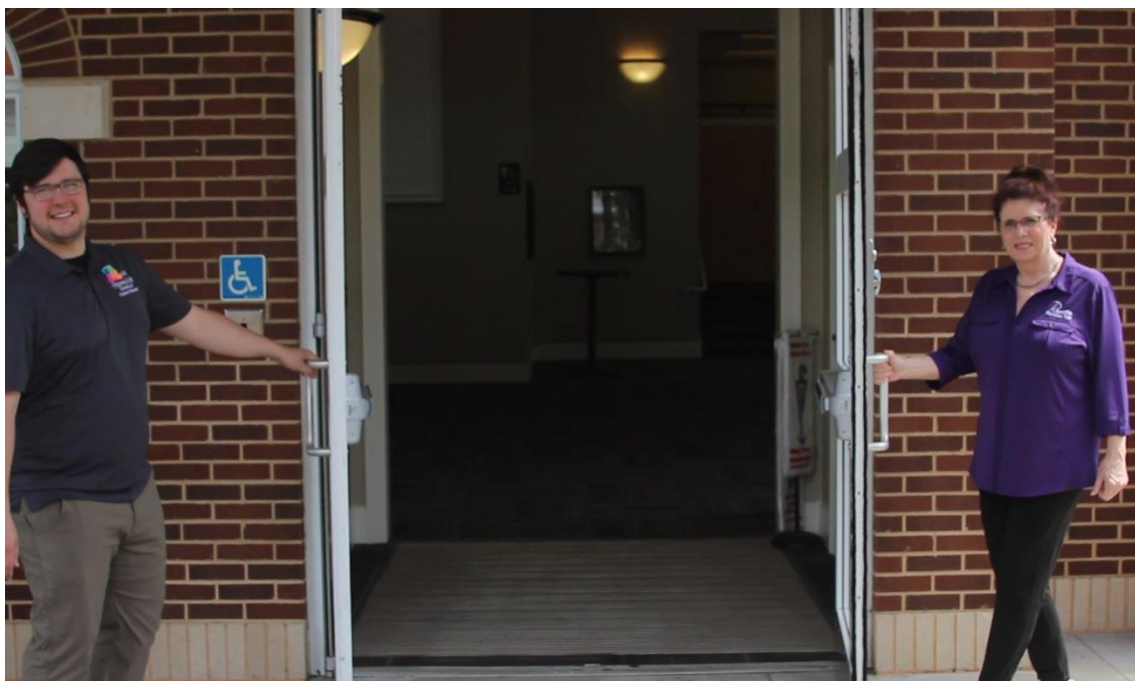

It may be noisy in the lobby and full of other people waiting to see the show. It is ok to cover your ears.

Volunteers will be wearing a name badge and will help if I have questions. Some volunteers may be wearing a purple shirt.

A volunteer will show me where to sit when I go in the auditorium.

The auditorium lights will turn down low. I will try to be quiet during the show so I can hear everything.

It is ok for me to cover my ears if the show is too noisy.

If the noise is too loud, I can go to the lobby to watch on a screen where it is quiet.

Sometimes the audience will clap. Clapping tells the performers that I like their performance. If I want to clap, I can.

When the show finishes, the performers will line up and bow and people will clap again.

After the show, we'll leave the theater the way we came in.

I am so excited to see the show and to be on the UCA campus. Go Bears!
