COMMUNITY CONVENING

Community Convening

Need a neutral facilitator to bring together community leaders for an in-depth discussion of community issues?

Interested in holding a public meeting to develop buy-in for community development efforts?

The Center for Community and Economic Development can facilitate town hall meetings or small group meetings related to selected community development issues.

The Center can act as a neutral facilitator and community and economic development expert to establish conversation flow between invested parties or to engage citizens in the development process.

This communication will allow leaders to build buy-in among key stakeholders and make informed decisions to move the community forward.

A Community Convening can also be the starting point for a community visioning process or to inform various community stakeholders.
