Hybrid Delivery
Modular Approach

Group 1/2

Group 2/1

Students are divided into two groups: a face-to-face group and an at-home group. Faculty plans the course in a series of modules. Some modules are delivered face-to-face; other modules are completed independently by students at home. Students rotate between on campus and at-home attendance. This is the most common form of hybrid delivery, giving every student both face-to-face and remote instruction.

PROS:

• Both groups receive face-to-face class

• High-stakes assessments can be done in the classroom

CONS:

• In-class cannot exceed occupancy limit

• More up-front preparation

What Instructor Sees

Student Group	Session 1	Session 2
Group A	(in-person)	(laptop)
Group B	(laptop)	(in-person)
Group C (Online Only Students)	(laptop)	(laptop)