57th National Conference of Academic Deans
July 26-29, 2003

"Creative Solutions in Changing Academic Environments"

57th National Conference of Academic Deans

Create time in your academic calendar for the annual National Conference of Academic Deans July 26-29, 2003 at the University of Central Arkansas, Brewer-Hegeman Conference Center, Conway, Arkansas where you will have the chance to gather and network with other academic deans in a relaxed environment to gain insights and fresh perspectives to aid you in meeting the challenges of the deanship. Academic vice-presidents, deans, associate deans, and assistant deans from all four-year colleges and universities, public and private, are eligible to attend.

About NCAD

Established in 1941 at Oklahoma State University, the National Conference of Academic Deans is the nation's oldest organization with programming focused on the deanship. The conference is a refreshing departure from the crammed schedule of packaged seminars as well as the daily routine of campus administration. At the NCAD Annual Conference you will always find excellent programs supplemented by valuable corridor conversations with colleagues. Special sessions for new deans are also provided.

Hotel Information

The following Conway hotels are holding rooms for the conference participants. Please call them before June 15 to make your reservations. Ask for Academic Deans' Conference.
