Animals

Dorothy encounters a lot of different animals in The Wizard of Oz. What are these animals like in real life? Here are some fun facts about the animals featured in the book and musical:

Lions- Dorothy meets the Cowardly Lion on her journey to meet the Wizard. Lions are the second largest big cat species in the world, second to tigers. The roar of a lion can be heard from 5 miles away. Most lions found in the wild live in southern and eastern parts of Africa. Lions in the wild, lions rest for around 20 hours a day.

Crows- Scarecrow's job is to keep the crows out of the gardens. Crows have the biggest brain to body ratio of all bird species. That means crows are pretty smart birds; their brains are even similar to the human brain. Crows are very social birds and can even bond with humans. They are migratory birds and they gather in large flocks to migrate during autumn and winter seasons. Crows have a very complex form of language and their distinctive 'cawing' has different meanings at different times. They have also been known to mimic sounds of other animals and can associate different commotions to different events.

Dogs- Dorothy's dog, Toto, travels to Oz with her. Toto is a Cairn Terrier. Cairn Terrier's are tiny dogs weighing only up to 13-14 pounds at most. They are also fearless and assertive dogs. Historically, farmers used the Cairn Terrier to rid their property of vermin. Cairn Terrier's have courage, tenacity, and intelligence, which makes them a great breed for pets!

Monkeys- Dorothy encounters, Nikko, the flying monkey, while in Oz. Monkeys are primates who live in groups and have families. Primates are more like humans than any other animals! They use screeches, howls, and screams to communicate with one another. Monkeys mostly eat plants and fruit, and sometimes bugs!

Tigers- Dorothy and the Tinman are afraid of meeting wild animals, like tigers, on their way to meet the Wizard. Tigers are the biggest species of the cat family. Many subspecies of the tiger are either endangered or already extinct. Humans are the primary cause of this through hunting and the destruction of habitats. Tigers are very good swimmers and they usually hunt alone at night. Tigers are fast runners and can reach speeds of up to 40 miles per hour!

Bears- Dorothy and the Tinman are afraid of meeting wild animals, like bears, on their way to meet the Wizard. Bears are large and very strong omnivores, which means they eat both meat and plants. Bears hibernate during the winter- that means they take a very long nap! Bears have great senses because it's important for their survival. They are excellent at smelling, seeing, and hearing.

Sheep- The Tinman tells the Cowardly Lion that he should count sheep to sleep, but the Lion is scared of them! Sheep were one of the first animals to be domesticated by humans. They live in the mountains or grasslands and they eat grass and plants. Sheep have very poor eyesight, but they are great at hearing. Sheep are timid and nervous by nature, which is why they flock together.

Science

Anatomy-

Anatomy is a fancy scientific word for parts of the body. The Tinman needs a heart and the scarecrow needs a brain. Have students draw around themselves on craft paper and add cut-out or drawn hearts, brains, and other internal organs appropriate to your grade level.

Build a life-size scarecrow and label the skeletal systems and the bones of the body!

Weather-

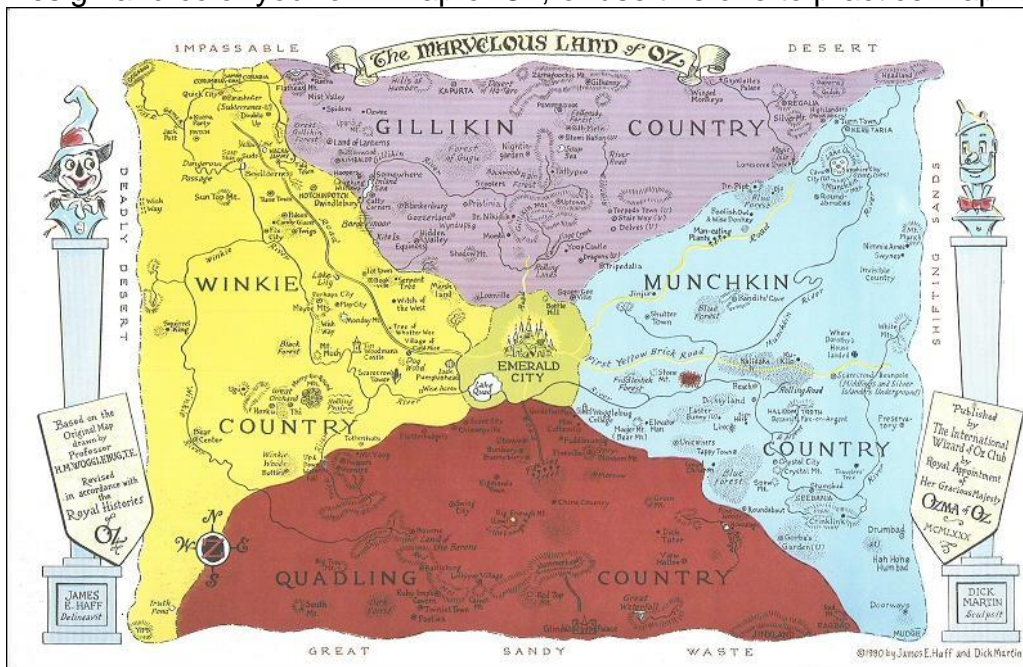

Make a tornado! Take two 2-liter soda bottles; fill one with water and some food coloring, and connect the two bottles with duct tape. One bottle will be upside down, the other right side. Move the water filled bottle to the top, give the bottles, a twist, and a vortex will flow into the lower bottle.
