Director's Note

This devised production is the result of a unique collaboration between our ensemble of Theatre students and the Creative Writing department. Using poetry from current and former UCA students as our foundation, we explored how words can come to life through movement, gesture, and emotion, breaking away from traditional narrative structures.

The process was one of discovery and experimentation, with each performer shaping their own creative journey. Together, we found ways to fuse text and physical expression, creating a production that feels both deeply personal and universally resonant.

We invite you to experience the poetry not just through words, but through the body and the heart. Thank you to all who contributed to this collective effort.
